BORN TIRED TO K.

LLOYD-GEORGE CRITICISES NEW MINISTRY.

NEW NEAR EAST CRISIS.

LONDON, November 7.
Mr. Lloyd George, speaking at Newcastle, said he disliked the new Government's born tired look. It was time they woke up. Inflammation was again showing in the Near East. The Turks said "We have got rid of that fellow, just look at the list of the new ministry." The Turks concluded the time had come for another try on.

Mr. Lloyd George said he and his friends would support the government provided they did not let the British flag down and if the Government showed the Turks they would not be trifled with, the Mudania convention must be observed. If trouble was to disappear and peace in the Near East was to be re-established.

Mr. Lloyd George concluded by saying he was anxious to form a National Liberal bodyguard for Parliament not to embarrass the Government but to save them from the dis-honour of extremists.

ELECTORAL CONFUSION.

LONDON, November 7.
The electoral confusion is such that scarcely a paper yesterday agreed even regarding the totals of the nominations. A definitive list issued shows the candidates in England and Wales number 1,253, in Scotland 171, and in North Ireland 16. They are divided into 26 parties or groups of whom the Conservative number 432 in England and 38 in Scotland.

The Liberals number respectively 287 and 48, the National Liberals 103 and 34, Labour 363 and 39. The remainder are insignificant groups with generally one representative, the strongest being the Independent Conservatives with twelve all in England.

The terms Independent Liberals, Coalition Liberals and Coalition Unionists have disappeared. The list contains only one Independent Liberal, Lieut. Colonel Davies, who is not opposed for Montgomery, and one Coalition Liberal, the former minister Mr. McCurdy whom a Liberal and Labour man are opposing for Northampton.

PREMIER'S IMPORTANT SPEECH.

LONDON, November 7.
More than average interest is attached to a speech by the Premier at South London in view of the preliminary official Conservative statement that he would expound the Government's ideas as regards tariff reform legislation concerning the constitution of the House of Lords.

At the outset Mr. Bonar Law referred to the Mr. Lloyd George's appeal to the Dominions in the time of the recent Near East crisis, and expressed astonishment that it had been issued without previous consultation with the Dominions and with the knowledge of only three or four Cabinet Ministers.

While wishing we had never gone into Palestine or Mesopotamia but recognizing the obligations that keep us there, Mr. Bonar Law would carefully consider Lord Grey's suggestion that we consult the Dominions in these matters.

TARIFF REFORM ISSUE.

The Premier, referring to the recrudescence of the crisis in the Near East, emphasised that the High Commissioners and generals were now absolutely united, which had not previously been the case.

Mr. Bonar Law disavowed Conservative hostility to the trades unions. He condemned legislation which would unwise tend to restrict the entry of Labour men into Parliament. In pursuance of the policy of tranquility he did not dream of legislation at present for revision of the Second Chamber, at least in the first couple of sessions. He contended that political agreement was necessary. Therefore he ridiculed the idea of repealing the Parliament Act.

Mr. Bonar Law concluded with a reference to tariff reform, expressing the belief that a fundamental change in the fiscal system would at present be bad because conditions have absolutely changed, notably in exchange, since the tariff controversy arose.

BRITAIN'S DEBT HONOUR.

ANOTHER $50,000,000 PAYMENT.

LONDON, November 8.

The Government has instructed payment to the United States on November 15 of a further $50,000,000 on account of our debt. The particular application of this will be settled when the exact amount of interest payable is fixed on the arrival of the debt mission at Washington.

BRITAIN'S BURDEN.

COLLOSSAL LIABILITIES.

LONDON, November 7.

A white paper shows that the State's aggregate gross liabilities are $7,742,000,000, an increase of $108,000,000 compared with last year.

ANGORA'S SWAMPING CHAINERS.

GRAVEL CONSTANTINOPLE POSITION.

"ALLIES ABSOLUTELY UNITED."

CONTROL SYSTEM MUST CONTINUE.

LONDON, November 7.

Official news shows that the situation at Constantinople is graver. The Kemalists have increased the customs tariff from five to fifteen times, doubling the price of bread. They have ordered duties to be paid to Angora instead of to the Ottoman Bank. They have withheld payments to the public debt and ordered debt officials to withdraw. This means the abolition of the financial commission and the first step to abolition of the public debt.

The Kemalists have also ordered the closing of the British judicial mixed court and have taken over the work of the Allied military commission. They have forbidden Ottoman troops to leave Constantinople without permission from Angora.

THE ALLIES UNITED.

The Allies are absolutely united in the view that responsibility for the safety of the population at Constantinople rests with them. The High Commissioners are taking steps to effect the release of Kemal Bay, former Minister of the Interior and the anti-Kemalist journalist whom the Kemalists arrested. The Allies regard his arrest as political persecution.

OCCUPATION CONTINUES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 7.

Ismet Pasha has arrived here. In connection with the Kemalists' demand for the evacuation of Constantinople it is pointed out that in accordance with the allied note of September 23, allied troops will remain in occupation of Constantinople until the peace treaty is ratified.

MARTIAL LAW WANTED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 7.

The Allied High Commissioners, in conversation with Hamid Bey, the Kemalist representative, informed him that the Allied governments, while not wishing to interfere with the internal affairs of Turkey, must maintain the system of control which was regarded as necessary during allied occupation of Constantinople.

The High Commissioners have asked their governments for instructions with a view to the proclamation of martial law.

JOURNALIST HANGED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 7.

It is reported that the Turkish Liberal journalist Ali Kemal was hanged at Ismid after the crowd had lynched him. The Sultan, when visiting General Harrington yesterday said that as the Khalif he was head of the whole Moslem world. Therefore he was not willing to accept the decision of the National Assembly.

AMERICAN PRESS COMMENT.

NEW YORK, November 7.

Commenting on the Kemalists' demands the World asserts they constitute a "dramatic vindication of Mr. Lloyd George. The paper forecasts that Frenchmen will soon say to M. Poincaré with regard to France's recent diplomatic victory over Britain "Another such victory and we are lost." The Tribune declares the status of the Allies at Constantinople is determined by the armistice and can be ended only by a Kemal act of war. The Kemalists will be very foolish to try war instead of negotiation. The Times says evidently the premises of the Kemalists are worth little more than those of Abdul Hamid.

LAUSANNE CONFERENCE DELAY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 7.

The Allies have authorized the High Commissioners to proclaim martial law, if necessary for the maintenance of order.

PARIS, November 7.

Britain has asked for postponement of the Lausanne conference until November 27. It is believed the French favour a shorter delay.

WITH THE PRINCE IN THE EAST.

SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS' BOOK.

LONDON, November 7.

A book of photographs and paintings by Donald Maxwell with a narrative by Sir Percival Phillips illustrating the Prince of Wales' journey to India and the Far East has been issued by Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton for the benefit of St. Dunstan's Hostel for blinded soldier and sailors.

DOWN STILL MORE.

FRANC AND MARK RECORDS.

LONDON, November 7.

The French franc made a new low record of 69.65 and the Belgian currency 78.85. German marks were from 85,000 to 86,000.

HAPPINESS

HOW CAN WE ATTAIN IT?

That money is not synonymous with happiness we have all heard so often that we have ceased to recognise its truth. In an article in Good-Housekeeping J. E. Buckrose draws our attention to this matter.

When in our early youth we learned painfully to form the syllable
"Money cannot buy happiness," we believed what we wrote—because, of course, a copy book could not lie. And yet the thought passed through our little minds even then, that money could buy chocolates, dolls, tin-soldiers. It is the grown-up realization of this hovering idea which makes men and women who are neither self-indulgent nor materially minded, desire to be rich.

But the source of the greatest misunderstanding in regard to wealth comes from the utter inability of some people, among both rich and poor—and they the most articulate—to comprehend either poverty or riches. There is the woman of means for instance, with delicate features, who clasps her hands and says in fervent tones: "I can easily go without a meal, but I must have my flowers, if only a handful of daffodils in a mug." And the listeners naturally think what a very superior soul that lady's soul must be—whereas, as a plain matter of fact it simply proves that she is a person with an entire ignorance of the meaning of the word poverty. Never in her life has she been obliged to fill her stomach or really empty to fill her eye—though she may have taken cod at the fish-monger's instead of salmon in order to spend the difference on roses.

Equally is the wage-earner of a certain type unable to grasp that any one can be short of money who has a large house and a staff of servants. He is unjust through sheer ignorance, and it seems as if the light of more knowledge on both sides, can alone adjust those inequalities in the human lot which appear inevitable in a world inhabited by human beings.

WHEN MONEY WAS HAPPINESS.

But—if I may be forgiven for being remissive!—there was one time in my own life when ten shillings and sixpence actually had the power to purchase for me pure, undiluted happiness. It was when I was a girl, and The Pall Mall Gazette paid me that sum for a poem, which was the first money I ever earned by my pen.
That I did spend in the dream way, down to the last farthing; and I remember my mother crying happy tears over the trumpery little gift which was her share.

But the joy to me, of course, was not in the money, so much as what it then meant. I saw myself walking through the world (always in a gown with a train and a new hat), while all the people I met nudged each other, saying with bated breath—"There goes the Authoress!" It is needless to add that on the few occasions when I am locally recognised now the phrase runs instead—"Is that an author's?" Oh, I thought they were quite different to that." Exactly in the tone of the lady who found a seaanemone, and felt herself defrauded because it had no stalk and smelt of fish.

I can't help wondering as I write this, whether others who read it also have memories of money that once seemed to buy them pure happiness
—and if so, what they are.

WHEN IT SPELLS UNHAPPINESS.

One thing, however, is certain; the surest way of achieving unhappiness with regard to money, is by indulging in that gruesome folly called "waiting for dead men's shoes." If a true account could be written of those who, even at the present moment, are becoming weakened in purpose, guilty of mean tricks, committing hideous crimes—that terrible crescendo of evil simply from this one cause, everyone would be aghast at it. And all this demoralisation often takes place with no reward at the end; for those with money to leave, particularly if they have no very distinct and obvious heir, such as a wife or child, are apt to cherish that love of power stretching beyond the grave which is so strange and yet human. The old man, deprived of outside influence, consoles himself by thinking of the surprise he can still give when his will is read; for he is unable to realize that he may not, somehow, be present, when he is dead
to see how they take it.

Though we may find out soon enough that money will not buy happiness, we also stick to that other impression of our copy-book days. It does buy dolls and tin soldiers. It will take us to somebody we love—though it cannot make that person love us, further than that, it may cause the lovesick to pretend so well that they deceive even themselves, for a time;
because golden dust in the atmosphere may be more distracting to the vision, and more harmful to the judgment, than any germ-ridden wind-storm to the body.

For the trouble is, we all confuse pleasure with happiness—that other golden light in the world which is so quick, and so pervasive, that we do not think of it until a shadow comes and it is gone. There seems to be only one way—given the means to

SHADOWS BEFORE.

CHINA COAST.HONGKONG'S WIRELESS POSI-TION FINDERS.

It has long been an accepted fact that the China Coast is many years behind in regard to the application of the latest methods of navigational aid to Coast and other shipping, and the time has long since arrived for a less conservative and more enterprising attitude to be adopted, especially in relation to wireless telegraphy, says Shipping and Engineering. (Shanghai). The typhoon season which terminated only a few weeks ago, and which proved one of the most disastrous in the history of shipping in these parts, has given many people seriously to consider whether the heavy loss of lives and ships which occurred between June and September might not appreciably have been lessened if a comprehensive system of dissemination of information regarding position and weather by wireless telegraphy had been in vogue.

It is good news, therefore, to learn that the Hongkong Government has definitely decided to have installed at Hongkong in the immediate future
one of the latest Marconi position finders. The position finder is a comparatively new development of the science of wireless telegraphy, yet short as has been its existence, it has been demonstrated beyond cavil that as a means of navigational assistance it has come to stay and to play a more and more important part in the safe movement of vessels at sea.
It is not clear from the information
so far made public which of the two chief methods of direction finding is to be made use of at Hongkong; but that matter is of little importance compared with the important fact that a definite start has been made to bring into vogue in these parts the latest methods of assisting the navigator, and that once the Hongkong direction finder gets going, it will probably be but the precursor of others.

It may not be out of place to mention, without entering into technical details, that the essential part of a wireless direction finding equipment or the "wireless compass" consists of a coil of wire usually wound on a frame from four to five feet square, and so mounted as to be rotatable round a vertical axis. Suitable receiving apparatus is connected to this coil for the reception of wireless "beacon" signals. Up to four months or so ago (and we think up to the present)

there were two distinct systems of wireless direction finding, which may, for convenience, be termed the "shore" system and the "shipboard" system respectively. The "shore" system usually consists of two or more direction finding installations (wireless compass stations) on shore, each being connected by wire to a controlling transmitting station. A ship wishing to know its position wirelessly the control station for bearings. If the direction finding stations are not busy on an other ship, the enquiring vessel is asked to transmit a certain signal (M.O., we believe, is commonly used) for one minute, during which time each of the compass stations takes bearings. The bearings are transmitted to the control station, where they are plotted, checked and re-transmitted to the ship. Single stations on shore are used to furnish bearings only. The "shipboard" method makes use of the direction finder on shipboard and transmitting stations on shore. These transmitting stations are placed in operation during fog and at stated times given in a published schedule.
They are automatic when once set in motion, and operate on a specified wave length, each beacon sending out a characteristic signal at given intervals. The signals are usually of a group dot nature and are easily recognized, even by an untrained ear. To determine his position from these signals, the navigator of a ship, in touch closes a switch in the direction finder, which is usually on the bridge, and adjusts a single tuning condenser until the desired beacon signal characteristic is heard. The wireless coil is then rotated to the point of signal extinction, the bearing then being read directly with respect to magnetic north on the card of a magnetic compass, which forms part of the direction finder equipment.

While the Chinese Government is among other things, one of the most conservative bodies on earth, there is an exception in that branch of the Government known as the Chinese Maritime Customs, and one can confidently expect that if the direction finder at Hongkong proves a success as assuredly it will, the Chinese Maritime Customs will not be slow in extending the principle, if not the exact system, to all of the chief ports in China.

"TRUTH, JUSTICE, PUBLIC SERVICE"

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 8, 1922.

THAT NEXT STRIKE.

Hongkong expects another big strike—that is clear. Nobody appears to have thought the recent seamen's trouble the strike to end strikers. Rather, everyone seems to have considered it the strike to herald still more strikes. Even before the seamen's agreement had been signed people were talking about the next big dispute. Bound to come, it was, they said; but this time the strike would not catch the Colony napping. Oh! no—never again would a grave crisis like the last one find Hongkong unprepared. This is what they said away back in May when feeling was still inflamed; this is what they are still saying now when the strike has become a memory, vivid may be, but less bitter.

What they are saying was echoed in the Legislative Council budget debate, when the Colony was adjured to "remember the strike's bitter lesson." It is the unanimous opinion of my official colleagues, "said the Hon. Mr. E. V. D. Parr," and I believe I am voicing the opinion of all right thinking men and women in the Colony, that the Government should take immediate steps, by legislation, if necessary to bring all labour guilds, unions and such-like associations under stricter control. Convinced that the Colony's labour supply is being unlawfully restricted, Mr. Parr urged the legislative control in order to stop agitation and prevent labour unions "helping make the tools of unscrupulous persons." Here was clearly expressed the fear of more trouble.

These views were shared by the Chinese members of the Council. "While we sympathise with the labourer for the betterment of his conditions, the time to act. The present is no time for the unscrupulous persons to should not be allowed to trade upon the credulity and ignorance of the simple labourer." Furthermore, urging the Government to encourage paddy growing within the Colony, the Hon. Mr. Chow Shou-sun brought the Government to "profit from the lesson of the seamen's strike" and make the Colony less dependent on outside food supplies. His meaning was obvious.

The Government also showed that the prospect of another strike had been exercising its mind. Alluding to labour restrictions, labour unrest and guild regulations, the Colonial Secretary assured the Council that "this very important question has been having most serious consideration by the Government," adding that the Government would gladly consider any constructive suggestions. Mr. Fletcher saw the remedy in education, better housing and improved living conditions of the very poor, rather than in restrictive measures. This shows that the Government is fully alive to the danger.

Hongkong expects another big strike and means to be ready when it comes. The labour guilds will be under stricter control and food supplies will have been organized. That is only proper. Never again must one section of the community have the power to paralyse the Colony's life. Must those who expect another strike however, seem to think it is inevitable. There are a few, on the other hand, who think a strike could be avoided altogether. Mr. Fletcher is one of the few; his remarks quoted above show that. The China Mail shares the belief most strikes here, great or small, could be avoided—given the necessary arbitration machinery.

As some most people are right and a dispute is inevitable, then this arbitration machinery will prove invaluable. As some most people are wrong and our industrial life remains free from trouble, then this arbitration machinery has cost nothing more than the effort required to establish legitimate aspirations of the labourer. Accepting either prospect, now is the time to act. The present is no time for the unscrupulous persons to and employed, with the Government's assistance, to explore avenues for establishing arbitration machinery with a confidence and a tolerance that the threat of a dispute, with its contingent haste and distrust would make impossible. Wise it is to prepare measures for the community's safety; wiser still it is to make the occasion for those measures, not impossible, then very unlikely.

Sir Claude is one of the most distinguished veterans of the British Civil Service in India, where he spent nearly 40 years. He has been Secretary-General of the Red Cross League since 1921. He is expected to be in Japan about 10 days. Numerous entertainments have been arranged in his honor.

MALARIA.

HOW IT SPREADS.

SANITARY BOARD DISCUSSION.

Some interesting facts about the prevalence of malaria in the Colony were handed out at yesterday's meeting of the Sanitary Board, when Dr. W. V. M. Koch, who had previously given notice of the questions, asked:—

- 1.—Whether there has been an increase in the prevalence of malaria in Hongkong and the New Territory during this year.
- 2.—What method has been adopted to ascertain the incidence of malaria in the Colony.
- 3.—Whether the extensive building operations now in progress might be held accountable for the increase of malaria, if there be any increase.
- 4.—If so, whether any prophylactic method can be adopted, such as ensuring the administration of quinine to the workmen and coolies engaged on such work.

Dr. W. V. M. Pearce, the Medical Officer of Health, replied: I find it somewhat difficult to give really definite answers to these questions, because I recognise that behind Dr. Koch's questions there lies an extremely important matter. Therefore, I would ask Dr. Koch and the Board generally to bear with me while I answer the questions as best I can.

1.—Malaria not being a notifiable disease, there is no reliable method of ascertaining its prevalence. Deaths from Malaria and admissions to the Government Civil Hospital for Malaria are recorded. During the first three quarters of this year there were 297 deaths ascribed to Malaria and, at the same rate should continue during the last quarter, the deaths from Malaria for the year will amount to 396 as compared with 332 in 1921 and 1920. The admissions to the Government Civil Hospital for Malaria for the years 1920, 1921 and 1922 (first three quarters) were 161, 266 and 194 respectively. The last figure, if the same rate of admission be maintained, will give 253 admissions for the whole year. There seems to be ground for thinking that the incidence of Malaria has increased during the last two years.

2.—Apart from voluntary information from medical practitioners, and that obtained from the Government Civil Hospital and the death registers, no method has been adopted to ascertain the incidence of Malaria in Hongkong. Compulsory notification is impracticable, and the continual interchange of population, (1,000,000 per annum, between the Colony and China) would prevent, in the majority of cases, any possibility of tracing the source of infection.

3.—Building operations, involving the housing of large numbers of coolies and artisans in places—especially in outlying districts and on the fringe of urban areas—where they have not been housed before, will undoubtedly lead to increase of Malaria in such districts amongst the new residents, if any.

This was observed at the West End of Victoria during the building of the University and notably in Kowloon during the construction of the big railway tunnel. Apart from this there is the fact that recently many new buildings have been erected in outlying districts and many people are passing their nights in places where Malaria must be expected, e.g., at Repulse Bay, Tsingling, etc.

Chinese villagers and servants must always be regarded as probable carriers of Malaria and, given a few anopheline mosquito from the hillside or occasional marshes, the disease is sure to spread.

4.—It is very doubtful that the taking of small doses of quinine as a prophylactic is really of any use. On the contrary, recent researches suggest that this habit may even detract from the value of curative doses when they are needed.

The best means of protection, apart from the draining of swamps, clearing of vegetation, and training of water courses consist in screening houses with wire gauze and using mosquito nets. During recent years there has been a large number of new residents in the Colony and I would take this opportunity of reminding them that, while they are reasonably safe from Malaria in urban areas here, yet the disease is indigenous to the Colony and that, in outlying districts, there is always danger of infection. Mosquito nets should therefore never be neglected.

Dr. Koch: Arising out of those answers, may I ask whether it would be possible for the Sanitary Department to take steps to notify contractors and people who are employers of gangs of labourers, who are, as the Medical Officer of Health says, a very great focus of malaria, from whom malaria undoubtedly spreads, and whom we do not not care for sufficiently to prevent their being attacked by the malaria-infected man and then biting the uninfected man?

"THE POPPY DRIVE."

MORE HELPERS NEEDED.

While a number of well known ladies have already very kindly volunteered their services in connection with Saturday's sale of Flanders poppies in aid of Earl Haig's fund for distressed ex-servicemen, still more helpers are needed. That "many hands make light work" is just as true of "poppy drives" as of anything else and it needs no mathematical effort to realise that it is much easier for two ladies to sell a hundred poppies each than for one lady to sell two hundred. The organising committee is anxious to ensure that no likely purchaser shall be without the opportunity of buying his poppy on Saturday and will be very glad if any ladies who are willing to give up an hour or two of their time on Saturday morning will get into touch with the hon. secretary, Mr. A. H. K. Cobb, c/o Union Insurance Society of Canton Ltd.

do not worry about these lower class people who are really the focus of the disease. I suppose I am not in order in discussing the subject, but I should like to ask whether means cannot be adopted in order to bring about such an end.

The Head of the Sanitary Department (Mr. Sayer): We will regard this as notice of the question. You said we take regard to the better class people and not to the lower class. That I can deny, at once. We guard the urban areas and we are unable to guard the rural districts. It does not matter how poor a man is, if he lives in Hongkong he is not likely to acquire malaria, because—so far as I know—no anopheline mosquitoes do not exist in urban areas. In rural areas this department has no control.

The Hon. Mr. Chow Shou-sun: Did I understand the Medical Officer to say the Chinese are carriers of malaria? What does he mean by that?

The Medical Officer of Health: Sir, I mean that, in the Far East, India, Malaya, Burma, South China, and so on—in places where malaria is indigenous—the native races must always be suspected to being infected—in veterinary practice the term "salut" is used. The majority of Chinese to-day are infected with malaria, though they do not show it except occasionally when the season is cold or when they are "under the weather." Then they exhibit symptoms of malaria and a dose of quinine or a little rest puts a man all right again. Nevertheless, the majority of native races in the Far East, where malaria is indigenous, are "salut"—they are really carriers, the parasite is in their bone-marrow or in their spleen; it may not be in their blood when taken from the ear or elsewhere, but it is in their system all the same. Further, if we have large numbers of artisans, coolies, hotel or domestic servants about us, and a few anopheline mosquitoes occur, we are bound to get the disease transferred from this Chinese reservoir to the uninfected men, by the mosquito biting the "salut" man and then biting the uninfected man.

The Chairman: Then the only carrier is the anopheline. Dr. Pearce: So far as we know, Sir,

"THE NEWSPAPER PRESS"

LECTURE BY MR. H.A. CARTWRIGHT.

Mr. H.A. Cartwright, editor of the Hongkong Daily Press, gave an interesting address to the members of the Literary Society of Union Church last night on "The Newspaper Press."

The Daily Press to-day reports the lecture as follows:—
The lecturer touched upon various expedients adopted for informing the public in pre-newspaper days, and said that the newspaper, as we understand it, only came into existence when the invention of printing made multiplication of copies a commercial possibility—a period dating, in England, to about the middle of the seventeenth century. The attitude of authority towards the Press was well expressed by Cardinal Wolsey when he exclaimed "We must destroy the Press or it will destroy us." Censorship was exercised, first, by Pope and Bishops and later, by King and Bishops. The Star Chamber was also brought into operation to stifle the popular desire for freedom of printed thought. Fines and imprisonment, with the pillory, the branding iron and the hangman's rope were employed to torture writers and to terrify readers. In the Civil War the aid of the Press for discussion of the questions at issue was invoked by both sides and, thus unbridled, the Press became a growing power. When Governments tried to reimpose the bonds they found that public opinion was 'strongly' on the side of greater freedom and no authority was able, afterwards, to reduce the Press to its former state of bondage.

Complete liberty, however, was still far away. In Charles II's reign, an Act was passed to forbid the publication of the proceedings of Parliament—whose members, nowadays, complain that they do not get enough publicity. At this time, also, a Licensor still further harried the Press, and the lecturer gave an instance, amongst others, of a barbarous sentence passed on a printer who published a statement of the people's rights which would be considered a truism. James II. continued the policy of repression; it was relaxed somewhat at the time of the Revolution, but in the reign of Anne—which saw the first daily newspaper—the insidious plan was adopted of imposing a heavy duty upon newspapers, which killed many of them. At the time of the American Rebellion, repressive enactments, prosecutions and heavy sentences were mercilessly imposed. Between 1808 and 1821, it was computed, 172 years of imprisonment were awarded to 80 persons for offences in connection with newspapers, and only 7 out of 101 persons tried were acquitted.

All the authorities and arguments for the liberty of the Press were placed in array before the public, in 1892, by Erskine in his address to the Jury on behalf of Thomas Paine, author of the "Rights of Man." The lecturer gave the principal theme of this speech and quoted this passage:—"No legal argument can shake the freedom of the Press, if I am supported in my doctrine concerning the great unalienable right of the people to reform or to change their Governments. It is because the liberty of the Press resolves itself into this great issue, that it has been, in every country the last liberty which subjects have been able to wrest from power. Other liberties are held under Governments, but the liberty of opinion keeps Governments themselves in due subjection to their duties. This has produced the martyrdom of truth in every age; and the world has been only purged from ignorance with the innocent blood of those who have enlightened it."

It was not until 1836 that the first of the "Times on Knowledge"—the duties imposed on newspapers in the reign of Queen Anne and subsequently, much increased—was abolished. This was the advertisement duty. The stamp duty followed a couple of years later, but the paper duty continued for nearly another 20 years until Mr. Gladstone carried its abolition.

The lecturer touched upon the improvement of mechanical aids to newspaper production, which received an impetus with the growing freedom of the Press. He also told something of the romance associated with the acceleration of newspaper distribution and the collection of news by which, nowadays, the Press is frequently able to acquaint the public with what is going on while a Government itself is still uninformed. Illustrations were given, showing that, whatever cynics might say to the contrary, the Newspaper Press, as a whole, has always been actuated by a very strong sense of patriotism and public duty; which, on many notable occasions, transcended any considerations of pecuniary profit or other advantage. While the high degree of efficiency which the Press has attained cannot but compel the admiration of everyone acquainted with the facts,

LOCAL WEDDING.

FIRMAN-LEGGETT.

At St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, on Monday, Mr. F. W. Firman, of Thorpe Street, St. Andrews, Norwich, overseer of the Public Works Department, was married to Miss Rose Leggett, youngest daughter of Mr. J. Leggett, who arrived from England by the s.s. "Karmala."

The Rev. G. R. Lindsay officiated at the ceremony which was attended by many friends of the bridegroom. The bride, who was given away by Mr. R. J. Everest, wore white crepe charmeuse, with veil and orange blossom, and carried a bouquet of white lilies and white roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Peggy Everest, wore a dress of white satin charmeuse and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white chrysanthemums. Mr. C. S. Coom was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Everest, No. 2, Railway Terrace, Kowloon. Later the happy couple left for Macao and Canton where the honeymoon is being spent.

continued the lecturer: "It is probable that, in many minds, there is some misgiving as to whether the tremendous expenditure of energy has been really worth while; whether the tone and character of newspapers have not been sacrificed to speed and popularity. But though The New Journalism" is often denounced for its personalism, it is implied that in former times the newspapers were other and better than they are now, nothing, as Sir E. T. Cook reminds us, could be more untrue. More personalities are published to-day, because there are more newspapers, but the personalities are much less offensively personal. Perhaps the chief count in the indictment brought against the Press to-day is that it is sensational and panders to morbid curiosity. As Truth pointed out recently, "So long as you rely on mere reason and arithmetic to demonstrate abuses no one will listen, but make a red-hot sensation, and you are sure of a hearing at once." Journals rely far less than they used to do upon news likely to pander to morbid curiosity, for they have a much greater wealth of interesting material to choose from than in former days. Very few papers now describe executions; there is still room for improvement but the upward tendency is apparent."

Another complaint made was that the Press always concerned itself with the unusual, and therefore gave a false picture of life; that it told all about the criminal and licentious, but said nothing of the thousands of law-abiding people who led honest and useful lives. The lecturer did not see how this could be altered or that it mattered so long as it was understood; writes for libel would certainly be issued against a newspaper which published the statement that "Mr. and Mrs. Blank are still living happily together." As to "journalism," he thought that "officialism" with its pomposity of phrase, long and involved sentences, and wretched clichés was a rather different suppur. Richard Cobden addressed his "Grammar" to Ministers of the Crown and to schoolboys, and drew most of his examples of faulty construction, bad diction and worse logic from speeches delivered from the Throne and from other documents of a similar character.

In conclusion, the lecturer said that the early history of the Press conveyed a reminder that the right of an Englishman openly and fearlessly to criticize the laws and their administration was only won by the sacrifice of our forefathers, who braved the might of Kings, Lords and Commons to unflinchingly and, in the end, successfully that Burke, pointing from his place in the House of Commons to the Gallery, described the Press as the "Fourth Estate" of the Realm and declared that it was greater than the other three. In these days the fear was sometimes expressed that the Press had become too powerful, but the power of the Press is its responsibility; it is the power of persuasion only, and must, in any intelligent community, ultimately rest upon justice and reason. In spite of great combinations of newspapers, under one head, the opportunities for all sides to gain a hearing remained as great as ever they were. That the masses of Great Britain—unlike the people of Russia—had not been misled in great numbers by Bolshevik agitators was attributable to their political sagacity in the development of which the Press had played the most prominent part. At the conclusion of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker.

AMERICAN ELECTION.

LAST MINUTE SPURT.

STRENUOUS ELECTIONERING.

New York, November 7.
Indications of heavy polling for to-day's Congressional elections through out the Country are reflected in early reports. Although the weather has not been propitious in many parts, strenuous electioneering marked the closing days. The campaign apparently developed at the last minute. The interest in what at first appeared a dull and apathetic contest. The Democrats consider the revival of interest in the campaign issues favourable to their prospects, while the Republicans adhere to the claim that the completion of the House will not be affected by the results of the polling. Women voters have been particularly heavy in their response.

FIRST RESULTS.

New York, November 7.
The first election results are from New England districts which are usually strong Republican. They show a decrease in the total vote compared with 1920, but the Democratic minorities are relatively larger.

SPECIAL CONGRESS SESSION.

MERCHANT MARINE AND LYNCHING.

WASHINGTON, November 8.
It is understood that the business programme of the extra session of Congress which President Harding is shortly convening for November 20 will provide for consideration of the merchant marine bill by the House of Representatives and a anti lynching bill by the Senate. The latter has a ready passed the House of Representatives. The regular session in December will probably tackle the question of appropriations.

SIAMSE MINISTERS DEATH.

FUNERAL AT ROME.

Rome, November 7.
The funeral of Phya Ribadh Kosha, Siamese Minister to Rome, occurred to-day. The Duke of D.lla Rovere represented the King. Others present included the Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, representing the Government, the Siamese Minister at Paris, the British, Brazilian and Japanese Ambassadors, and prominent municipal and civil authorities.

IRELAND'S EVIL GENIUS.

DE VALERA'S LATEST "EDICT."

LONDON, November 8.
Mr. De Valera and his co-signatory, Austin Stack, have followed up their declaration of November 6 with another solemnly "proclaiming" the Provisional Government, "an unconstitutional usurping junta," as an illegal body pledging the nation's credit without sanction of the Republican Government and warning all concerned that the Provisional Government's activities are null and void.

AMERICAN MINE EXPLOSION.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

SPANGLER, November 7.
Sixty-three bodies have been recovered in the Reilly coal mine. Thirty-two others have been taken to hospital and thirteen are still not accounted for.

CANTON RICE MARKET.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

CANTON, Nov. 8.
The advance in prices reported on Monday proved, as predicted, an attempt to bolster up the market on the strength of poor harvest reports and high premium for Hongkong notes. There was no corresponding rush of purchasers so prices have receded. It is felt that there is an abundance of stock in Canton and shipments are arriving regularly from Hongkong, there is no immediate fear of dear rice. The latest quotations are as follows: No. 1 Native White Rice $3.70; No. 2 Native White $3.70; No. 1 Saigon Long White $3.70; No. 2 Saigon $3.70; No. 1 Native Brown $3.70; No. 2 Native Brown $3.60; Siam Bran 2.60. Tails; and Saigon Bran 2.40 Tails. All the prices are Canton Currency per picul, spot goods.

CANTON SUGAR MARKET.

The sugar market has been steady, with a small amount of business being done at the higher prices. The values are fluctuating with the changes in the premium on Hongkong Notes. On Tuesday morning the premium fell to 25.2 per cent and prices went down accordingly. The afternoon quotation was 25.9 per cent and sugar prices moved up in proportion. About 2,000 bags of Java No. 20 rough whites have been sold during the last two days at an average of $11.60 per picul, Hongkong currency.

CANTON FLOUR MARKET.

There is an upward tendency in the prices of flour in Canton. This is due mainly to higher prices in Shanghai, the drop in exchange, the small and far-between arrivals and the depleted stocks. Although prices have gone up in Shanghai, Canton importers are still prepared to buy, but very little business has been put through.

The well-known Shanghai brand "Warship" is now quoted at $3.68 per sack; Canton Currency. American Flour, such as "Dayton" and "White Greens" has been sold at $5.22 per sack.

CONSTABLE FINED.

Chinese constable No. 253, Mak Kwan, was charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton this morning with neglect of duty. He was alleged to have left his beat in the Central District at 10 p.m., on Monday and gone to an opium den at No. 10 Chung-cheng Street, West Point. Here he removed his uniform and smoked opium on one of the benches alongside a number of coolies.

Defendant admitted the offence. He said he had a stomach ache and had to smoke opium to cure it. Sub-Inspector Lake said defendant had had nine years' service, but his record was not good.

After inspecting the man's record, the Magistrate asked if this offence would entail defendant's dismissal from the force.

Inspector Lane: Yes, I think so. Defendant was fined $25 or one month's jail.

THIRSTY FOWLS

"A VERY BAD CASE"

Inspector Fisher of the S.P.O.A., charged the master of No. 69 stall in the Central Market, before Mr. E. W. Hamilton this morning with failing to provide water for fowls, by failing to provide water for them.

The Inspector said he visited the stalls in the Central Market at noon on November 2. In No. 69 stall, he saw ten pens of fowls with no water in them. There were between 20 and 25 fowls in each pen. The stall was looked and when it was opened, the witness found the water used for water at the other end of the stall.

Defendant's excuse was that a fowl had just taken the utensils out of the pens to clean them and change the water. The Magistrate said it was a very bad case of cruelty, and fined the defendant $5 for each pen—$50 in all.

CORRESPONDENCE.

HAPPY VALLEY TRAMWAYS SERVICE.

(To the Editor of the "China Mail.")

Sir,—It is gratifying to note that, after all, the Hongkong Tramway Company contemplates taking a move in the right direction to extend its track around the Race Course and alter the route of cars.

From the report that appeared in the papers of the 2nd instant I gather that this company has still not seen fit to make provision for increasing the number of cars for this district, and that no mention is made regarding a better revision of its time table, reflecting the existing altogether too early stopping hour.

I think I am right in saying that the time, which takes a car to traverse the whole circle with a few halting points, will necessarily be as long an interval, if not longer, than the time usually taken up by a car entering and leaving the valley on the route used at present.

Great annoyance has long and very often been felt by residents of the valley who want to board a car for this part of the Colony from any of the many stations in town, and once he has the misfortune just to miss the last car, he is obliged to stand still on the roadside, pathway or even the gutter to wait fully twelve or fifteen minutes for the next one, and generally he sees about seven cars pass by before the one for his destination crawls up—ultimately rewarding for his perseverance for him to find all the seats occupied and even standing space denied him.

I may say that it can hardly hurt this company to any appreciable degree or affect the size of the annual dividends to its shareholders and bonus to its directors, officers and what not, to put, say, two or three more cars on this run to make the service a nice or eight minutes and less hideous and tiresome one.

The cars bound for Happy Valley, that pass the Post Office Building, both at midday as well as those shortly after 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., are rarely found to be other than in an overcrowded state, and personally, I have, on numerous occasions, had to abandon taking a car with the sign of "Happy Valley" stuck up, but reluctantly, or perhaps wisely, boarded instead the one coming steadily up next, and before my destination is anywhere near, to alight at the junction of Praya East and Tin Lok Lane and from thence hire a ricksha to take me home.

The present state of things are far from being satisfactory. It seems to me to be impossible for anyone to say that the people having this monopoly in their hands and being entrusted by the Government with the obvious duties to serve the tram-car travelling public with whatever best possible facilities are themselves unaware of this grievance, and it is as well deplorable that the conditions now prevailing should have been permitted to go its usual course year in and year out and day after day without the people responsible for the working of it is concerned endeavoring to take any trouble to effectively remedy such an abuse.

I should imagine, it is high time for the directors and General Managers of this Company of Public Utility to follow the good examples already set by other bodies of public carriers such as the Railway Administration, Peak Tramways, Star Ferry and many others to lose no time but speedily arrange to accord the residents here with a quicker and more efficient service at least during the lunch, school and office closing hours and keep the cars running in the evenings say up to 9.30 or 10 p.m.

I venture to hope that the Company will not take too long to fall in with my suggestions, but to agree with me as fair minded people would, that I am not at all asking too much out of it. Thanking you for the insertion of this letter and enclosing my card.

Yours etc.,

PATRICK OF A LARGE FAMILY

LOOKED POOR.

BUT HAD THE MONEY.

Fines ranging from $20 to $25 were this morning imposed by Mr. E. W. Hamilton on a number of Chinese lodging house proprietors for having allowed their houses to be overcrowded, contrary to Sanitary requirements.

The summonses were brought at the instance of the Secretary for Chinese Affairs on the representation of the Sanitary Board.

A Sanitary Inspector who gave evidence in the case, said, in reply to the Magistrate, that one of the defendants would be able to pay the $25 fine. "Despite his poor appearance," declared the Inspector, "he is making lots of money."

MIXED COMMISSION DISCUSSES PROPERTY.

PEKING, November 8.

The Sino-Japanese commission this morning discussed public properties the Japanese a, rising to the Chinese reply thereon, except as regards the Tsingtao commercial college, for which the Chinese undertook to devise another way to solve the question.

The Chinese Sub-Commission on public properties presented a statement on the principles of valuation and valuation of itself of public properties and sub-control of the civil administration which the Japanese have promised to reply.

The Chinese proposed to discuss procedure for transferring the Tsingtao administration but this question was postponed until to-morrow's meeting. —Reuter.

THE TRE ROYAL

"THE YOUNG PERSON IN PINK"

L. note, the young lady in pink, played by Miss Jane Compton, received as much applause in the Theatre Royal last night as did the young protegee of Daddy Long Legs the night before. The action of the play was based upon a rather strained premise—the complete loss of memory by the heroine. However, the little strings of witicism that ran through the play, together with the excellent acting kept the audience greatly pleased and the new English Farce Company can count the piece one of their best productions.

Mrs. Badger, the "ambitious" mother, thought so hard over her stories that, like members of Parliament, she finally believed them. Miss Winch (Miss Celia Burdett) furnished the hint of mystery and represented Dame Grundy. Miss Daisy Revett played well the character of a kindly, critical friend. In this tringly play Lady Tonbridge, the unscrupulous match-maker, is beaten by Lenora who, when she discovers her identity marries the hero of the play Lord Stereog (Mr. A. Higgins) who has been her lover all through the story. At the conclusion of the piece, the players were warmly applauded and there were a number of curtain calls. Miss Jane Compton was presented with a huge basket of flowers accompanied by a small k.w.e.

To night is the farewell performance. The play is "Tilly of Bloomsbury."

CROCKED DRAINS.

CHINESE HOUSE-OWNER FINED.

The Chinese owner of two houses in Chinglong Street, was this morning summoned before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, charged at the instance of Mr. Neville, of the P.W.D., with having allowed the drains of the houses to become choked.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $25 and ordered the drains to be cleared within 48 hours.

Defendant enquired what would happen if the drains were not cleared within the stipulated time.

Magistrate: It will cost you another $100, that is all.

Defendant then proceeded to argue that the responsibility rested with the tenants of the houses, but the Magistrate declined to hear him further.

OFFENDING RUBBISH HEAP.

Mr. Brookesbank of the P.W.D., summoned a house contractor for having failed to abate a nuisance by removing a quantity of rubbish on a building site in Nathan Road, Kowloon.

Mr. Brookesbank said that every time he visited the place, the defendant would have the rubbish removed, but when he returned another day, there was some more rubbish deposited there.

The Magistrate remarked that the defendant was not so bad as the man in Mr. Neville's case, who had taken up steps to comply with the order to abate the nuisance. However, defendant was also fined $25, as he had allowed the nuisance to be repeated after he had been warned.

AN EXPENSIVE SLIP.

Mr. Brookesbank also prosecuted a building contractor for having failed to comply with an order of the Building Authority.

Defendant, according to Mr. Brookesbank, had laid reinforcement on the first floor of a house in course of construction, with an average centre of 8 1/2 inches instead of 6 inches, as shown on the P.W.D.'s approved plans.

A fine of $50 was imposed.

Mr. Brookesbank asked for an order for the whole floor to be pulled down.

The Magistrate made the necessary order, to be complied with within 7 days.

CANTON CURRENCY.

BANK NOTES DEPRECIATE STILL FURTHER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

CANTON, November 8.

The Kwangtung Provincial Bank's notes have further depreciated. This is because the Governor and Merchants of Canton have made it known that notes will not be accepted there.

Large numbers of troops, about to be embarked for Swatow, have been paid in notes and they are exchanging their pay for silver before sailing.

As a result of the demand on the money changers, the notes are now quoted at about 50 per cent.

GASOLINE STORAGE.

MOTOR GARAGE OWNER FINED.

Lee Hoi-kee, the proprietor of a motor garage at No. 5, Matheson Road, was fined $5 by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, this morning, for having had on the premises 16 gallons of gasoline without a storage permit.

Defendant's excuse was that the petrol belonged to Mr. Dunbar, of Messrs Dunbar Bros Ltd (the Magistrate held the defendant responsible).

WHERE THE GLOOM GERM LIVES.

When you feel out of temper with everybody and every thing, when you find you are a wretched, irritable, and gloomy creature, look to your liver, for that is the trouble. It is the liver that is the trouble, and take a dose of Pinkettes, for therein is the remedy.

Pinkettes gently stimulate the liver, do not cost a cent, cure bilious attacks, sick headache, constipation, indigestion, and all other ailments connected with the liver.

Nature's Parachutes.

Mr. Dandeno, of the Michigan Agricultural College, has submitted to careful examination the heads of Canada thistle-downs, in order to determine their effectiveness as parachutes, carrying the seeds of the plant great distances through the air.

His results are quite remarkable (according to the Montreal Witness). Calculation shows that a thistle-down starting from an elevation of 20 feet, in still air, would require two-thirds of a minute to reach the ground. With a wind blowing 20 miles an hour it would be carried, on the average, about a fifth of a mile. The total surface exposed to the air in an average thistle-down is, on account of the great number of barbs, a little more than one-third of a square foot. Another well-known and very beautiful example of nature's parachutes is furnished by the light silken threads with the aid of which the little gossamer spider makes long aerial voyages.

Sterilizing Milk.

According to a London representative of the Agricultural Council of Denmark, the Association of Danish Co-operative Creameries are making arrangements to demonstrate at the Dairy Show in London in October an invention which enables milk to remain perfectly sweet and fresh for many days. The apparatus sterilises milk at a temperature of 130 centigrade, without exposing it to the air, the system being that the milk under high pressure is passed through a combination of pipes. To test the claims of the inventor, Mr. J. J. Nielsen, a Dane, milk treated thus was dispatched from Maritzburg to London, where it was examined by experts who expressed their entire satisfaction. The milk retained the vitamins formerly destroyed by other methods, and the cream remained in the milk, not rising to the top. Under the treatment the milk does not boil, although the temperature is in excess of milk boiling point. The invention has given rise to confident hopes on the part of Danish experts for the securing of part of the British milk supply.

Gardening by Film.

There will shortly be seen in the cinemas a remarkably instructive series of films designed to demonstrate how various operations should be carried out in the garden. In many cases, such as in the budding of fruit and rose trees, the operations call for both knowledge and skill, which together are not always available to the amateur. The film, however, will, through the medium of slow motion photography, show everything with even greater effect than could a skilled gardener. The series will include, amongst other things, the propagation by layers of certain flowering trees and shrubs, the pruning of certain types of fruit trees, strawberry propagation, hoeing and the use of the mulch, the sowing of different kinds of vegetables and flowers; the disbanding of chrysanthemums and roses, the treatment of tomatoes and cucumbers in greenhouses, staking herbaceous plants, pruning rambling roses, preparing window boxes, &c., &c., covering practically the whole field of flower, vegetable, and fruit culture for all seasons. This series of gardening hints are being given by Mr. A. J. Rudge, the well-known horticulture expert, and will appear from week to week in the well known screen magazine, "Around the Town."

Noise Recording.

A new instrument which will analyse any kind of sound has been made. It will show you what the notes of a hammer blow looks like on paper—or will show up a fault in the gearing of a machine; in fact, it registers graphically the things one listens for and will show the slightest variation in the air pressure caused by the waves due to sound. It is portable and simple and consists of nothing more than a silvered diaphragm fixed at the end of a horn. If one sings or whistles into the horn the diaphragm vibrates and its movements cause a pencil of light focused upon a piece of kinematograph film attached to a revolving drum to trace out the motion of a zigzag path. March can be learned as to the nature or quality of the sound by the shape of the zigzag curve, and the number of vibrations per second can be easily counted by means of a regular curve traced at the edge of the film by a tuning fork, the movements of which are, of course, always the same in number per second.

Photographing sound waves and vibrations is not in itself a new achievement, but the new instrument makes its appearance, as a practical testing instrument for engineers and physicians.—Daily Mail.
